Christie Fleetwood is puzzled by a biology lab as her classmates, Terri Altorfer and Jimmy Jacobs, progress to find the solution.

Mark Talbott gets frustrated as he attempts to pass a make-up test.

Royals Rendezvous

REPUBLICAN PUSH.

President Reagan spoke on behalf of Paul Trible, who was running for a U.S. Senate seat.

Inflation skyrocketed while interest rates dropped, and we all changed under the politics of Reaganomics. Tax cuts put more money in students' pockets, but inflation took most of it back.

Locally, the Tri-Cities provided both candidates for the fourth district House of Representatives seat, Robert Daniel and Norman Sisisky.

Seniors got involved early in October by attending a campaign speech in Richmond, where President Reagan spoke for Republican senatorial candidate, Paul Trible. Although election fervor waned, students found the process produced reform. Royals saw changes once more.

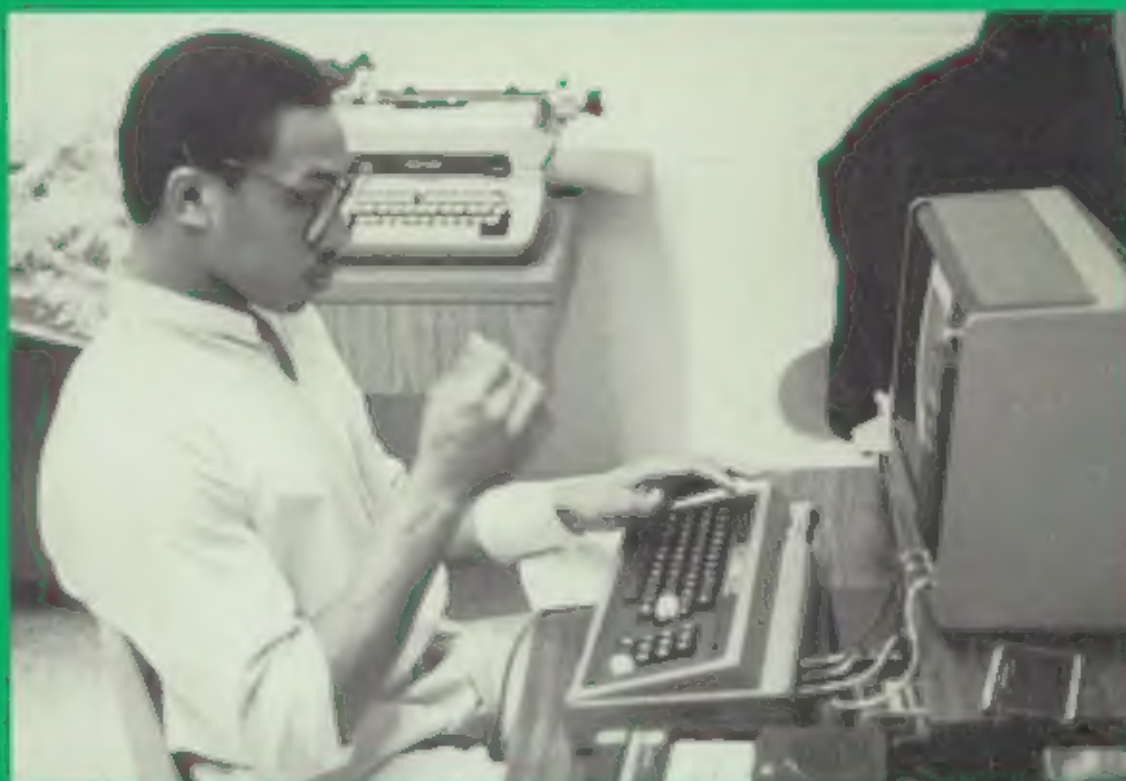

FUTURE POLITICIANS.

Seniors enjoy a trip to an old fashion Republican rally for Paul Trible, in which President Reagan spoke.

THE PATRIOTIC WAY.

Angie Whitt reflects upon her day on the ride home from the Richmond Arena.

Robert Weldon tries his program over again, not understanding what went wrong.

Royals Charge the "New Wave"

GREEN, GOLD AND PURPLE!

Art Club President, Donna Burns, discusses homecoming projects with Karen Robinson, Lisa Gravely, and other members of the art club.

Another year came, and with it new movement, new faces, fashions, and attitudes arrived and it looked like it changed our way of thinking and living. The "NEW WAVE" burst!

As the year began, students noticed that skirts became shorter and shorter and the headband craze started to invade. The Valley girl vocabulary came into the picture and "totally" freaked us out. People finally found a solution to the normal way of life. "NEW" took over and the "WAVE" of the future appeared.

VOGUE?

From the dead alligator to the flashy "NEW WAVE", Nancy McClellan, Angie Mann and Loretta Moates show off the fashions of the day.

Before giving blood, Rhonda Bostic must first pass the temperature test.

A PAUSE THAT REFRESHES

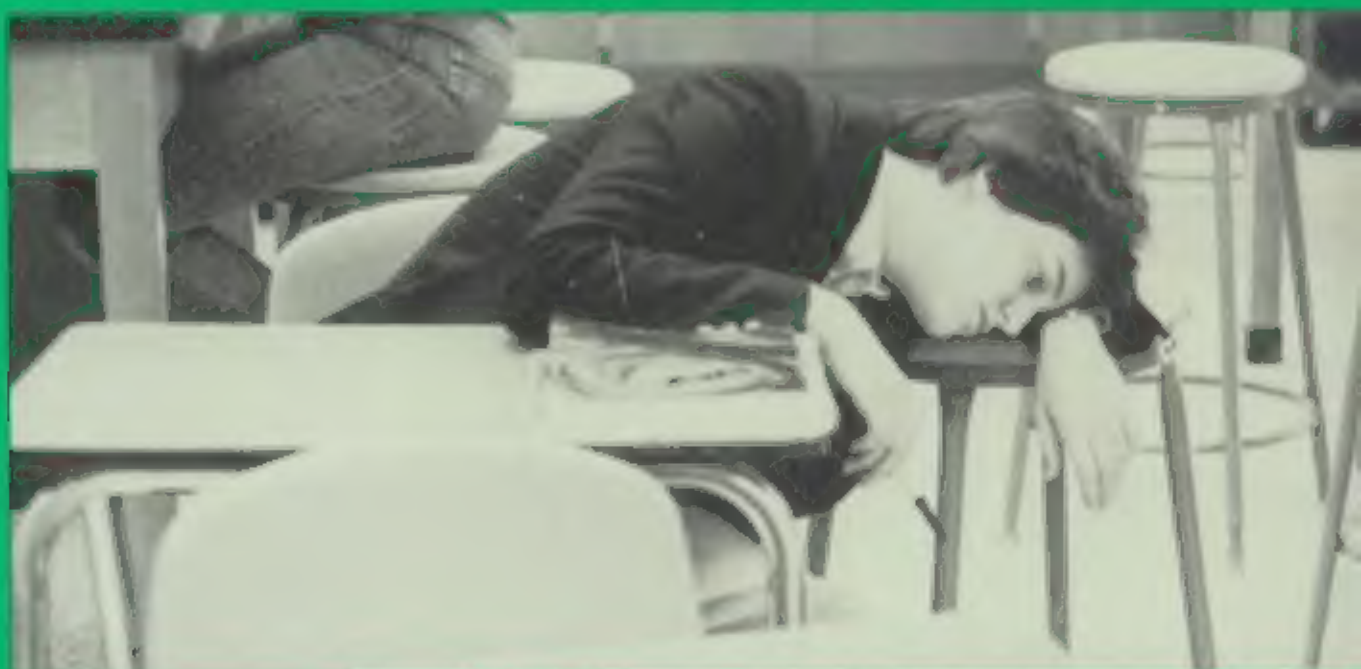

As the novelty of the beginning of school wore off, the Monday morning blues took hold. You forgot about your 5th period test, but luckily lunch provided extra time to cram. You knew you should have stayed home the night before to study, but getting together with friends seemed much more appealing. Patiently waiting for the weekend, the days seemed to creep. Finally when it did arrive, it never lasted long enough to enjoy all the fun. With football games and going out for pizza, Friday nights became the best night of the week.

ANOTHER PROGRAM!

Linda Buschke takes a break before she starts to write her next program.

FLASHBACKS.

Janet Henderson, Kris Short, Beth Hoover, and Judy Kelly flash school spirit and "fashion etiquette" for Nostalgia Day.

NO TALKING DURING CLASS!

LAIID BACK.

THE OLD BECAME THE NEW

With each new year came a freshness, an excitement that each new class projected. Although many, even most, of the same activities projects and sports events remained the same each year, they became "new" for each new class. For every sophomore class came the confusion of a new building with four "wings?" Each year juniors anticipated the arrival of their rings and the prom. Even while seniors struggled with term papers, college and job applications they knew this was it for their high school years. These events stayed constant for classes throughout the years, yet became new for each student who walked these halls. For everyone held their own feelings and memories. Their experiences as a "sophomore" a "junior" a "senior" became new to them, an experience only they could remember. In this sense the routines, the traditions, the old became a part of this year's NEW WAVE.

The Last Gathering

The class of 1982 finished out the year in much the same way as all seniors do in the spring before they graduate. The annual Florida trip took seniors who had turned pale from lack of sun, and returned them a couple of days later, tanned, bright-eyed and almost ready to go back to work. Class night marked the next big event on the seniors' list of activities. Then King's Dominion provided a way to burn off excess energy as students had the option of riding six roller coasters, while Rick Springfield entertained his fans "Live," much to the delight of all. After a busy week of preparations and practices the big day arrived at last.

Graduation . . . the final culmination of four years of blood, sweat and tears that many called the greatest times of their lives. Remember how you worried over your term paper until the last five minutes after you handed it in for judgment? And getting that class ring fulfilled your junior year. How about that frog which made sophomore biology so memorable? All those highlights seemed like just yesterday as you approached Dr. Russo with your diploma in his hand. With all these memories tucked away in your mind the real world came next

EXPERIENCING EXPRESSION

Whether they liked it or not, all students entered the "A" wing hall some time during the day. The English classes provided a wide variety of subjects. The seniors studied English literature, did term papers, and read MACBETH and HAMLET. The high senior class put together "Etc.", the school literary magazine. The juniors read American literature, The Scarlet Letter and Huck Finn. They composed critical analyses and wrote poetry for the literary magazine. The Journalism class published the school newspaper, "Ye Royal Scribe." The sophomores, though new to the school, stayed busy with "Caesar" as their main project. A combination of grammar and literature filled their schedule throughout the year. English classes provided the basic skills needed by all students.

The foreign language department underwent many changes this year. Madame doubled as a Senora, Frau became a Mademoiselle, and Senorita Thede joined the staff. Even though these changes upset the normal routine and enrollments dropped, the teaching remained excellent and the students enthusiastic.

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

The Social Studies department offered students a chance to explore U.S. History, World Geography, World History, and Government. Two new members, Mr. Chip McCoull and Ms. Rhonda Muench joined the staff

U.S. History and Government, both required for graduation, caused many groans among students. U.S. History started with how and why this country settled and major events that influenced our nation. Government students, mainly seniors, learned about our system of government. For the really energetic history buffs, 20th Century History gave an opportunity to further their knowledge of the twentieth century. World Geography classes studied locations of

THE SHADOWS OF D-WING

D-Wing haunted many students with math, science, and computer classes

Computer classes brought many complex problems. When asked why he took computer, Mark Bartlett replied, "It's the up and coming field without some knowledge in computers, you just don't have a chance." Students spent many hours working on their programs, rewriting them whenever necessary

The math minded scholar found satisfaction ranging from consumer math to calculus. Mr. Postas became a new addition to the Royal family

Biology I students welcomed Miss Weatherly for her first successful year. In Biology II, pupils got the chance to express their creativity through experimental projects. The traditional dissections took place, spurring the interests of many

Mr. Cox had the pleasure of teaching all the chemistry classes. He amazed students with laboratory situations and furthered their knowledge with facts. A high chemistry class formed, which provided many valuable experiences

CARS AND CALISTHENICS

Shorts became the proper attire for all physical education classes. Warm-up exercises always followed. P.E. classes explored a variety of sports. Certain days, however lead to the classroom for Driver Ed. and Health. Driver Education became the first step in getting a license. The range came next with students practicing their driving skills and learning all of the basics for operating a car. The final school encounter consisted of driving on the road and observing others. With all of these steps completed, a successful visit to the Division of Motor Vehicles provided the finalization of the license process.

NOTES FOR NOTES

Band and choir classes provided fun, excitement, and hard work to make the year a success. Mr. Gallup gave the band students his best effort. The band proved they deserved as much credit as any other class.

Ms. Muench showed the school that choir demanded hard work and total concentration. Musicians could play their best beat or sing until their hearts content.

V.C.U.....HERITAGE FAIR.....ART PORTFOLIOS

These activities consumed the art classes. Their trip to V.C.U. with art portfolios, reviewed by the faculty, provided a valuable learning experience. Plans for exhibits and craft works at the Heritage Fair captivated their time. Their activities also included the "Keep Virginia Green" contest. The Student body escaped routine by visiting the art room on "Strange Day" to witness bizarre sites designed and constructed by the art classes

Likewise, the Home Economics classes offered information in budgeting, buying homes, child development, divorce, death and dying. Throughout the year, these classes enjoyed the privilege of hearing speakers on various topics. A newcomer to the department, Vanessa Conley, instructed students in the use of equipment, recipes, utensils, and proper cooking techniques. But not straying too far from tradition, the classes baked 1400 cookies for the blood drive, and altered the cheerleading uniforms. It became apparent that home ec means more than pots, pans and straight pins

Vocational classes offered students training in a variety of technical areas. Students gained valuable experience with wood, printing, photography, mechanical drawing, forestry and many more related topics.

Breaking the academic grind of required courses, students learned beyond the textbook. First hand experiences rewarded participants with pride in accomplishment and new found knowledge. The first year photography class introduced upperclassmen to the art of capturing scenes around them. Higher level courses drew upon previous information to refine techniques. Amidst the flurry of activities, students discovered that learning yields rewards

The Rowanty student body contains students from the counties of Prince George, Sussex and Dinwiddie. The students attend Rowanty to receive vocational-technical training. Most of the students plan to use the skills to prepare for a future career, and hopefully to obtain a marketable skill. Some of the classes offered include cosmetology, air conditioning and refrigeration, auto mechanics, metal trades, small engine repair and nurses aides.

In addition to vocational classes, the students attend two or three regular classes at school. Juniors go to Rowanty in the afternoon, whereas the seniors attend in the morning.

WALL STREET PHENOMS

B-wing, the setting for business courses, gained several new faces. Mrs. Carol Peterson and Miss Dee Sturgill joined the faculty, and students took an instant liking to them.

Stenography and business typing prepared future secretaries. Business typing must be taken first. Stenography consisted of dictation, shorthand and precise typing.

Marketing education, offered on three levels, gave students a chance to experience the working world. Local merchants cooperated with this program, by providing jobs for students.

Personal typing mainly attracted seniors needing assistance on term papers. Timings to test accuracy and speed, both part of the daily routine, strengthened students on these skills, necessary for future projects.

WEEKENDS WERE MADE FOR SENIORS

Friday and Saturday nights, one found a group of seniors at Pizza Hut, Mad Italian, the Arcades or the Cinemas. Here the seniors started a weekend ritual of spending money and socializing. Hunting and shopping consumed the time of some, while cooperative weather lent itself to outdoor activities. As a last resort, seniors turned to the T.V. for a lack of better entertainment. Come Sunday night, you'd find most seniors cracking the books and cramming for Monday's classes

HOTSPOTS

Pizza parlors, movie theaters, video arcades and skating rinks continued to attract students as inexpensive places to hang out after school and on weekends. Many Royals took advantage of these hot spots and went out as often as possible. Although Skateland no longer drew the crowd it once did, students still made occasional visits to see friends and to keep their skating legs in shape. Movies gained a lot of popularity. Cinema 4 and the Walnut Mall Theater usually catered to the public need and supplied the latest movies. Scientific and romantic movies became big hits in the early 1980's. Mad Italian and Pizza Hut prolonged the evening with a quick bite to eat before going home. If the price of pizza outweighed your wallet, fast food restaurants served good food without breaking the piggy bank. Video arcades with all the different games provided almost endless fun for students while private parties invited an inexpensive diversion.

SENIORS ONLY!!!

Some classes became available only to seniors. Working through the past years made this privilege possible

F-wing offered a family living class. Aspects of marriage and financial planning represented only a few of the areas covered

A-wing had a 20th Century U.S. History class among its offerings. In this class seniors enjoyed making their annual historical video movie

D-wing held the other two classes for "seniors only." Biology II, remembered by the cat dissection, and Calculus, where you learned curve tracing, derivatives, etc., filled many hours with outside work

Many students strived to achieve the standards each class had set and most everyone reached the ultimate goal: passing

ANXIETY

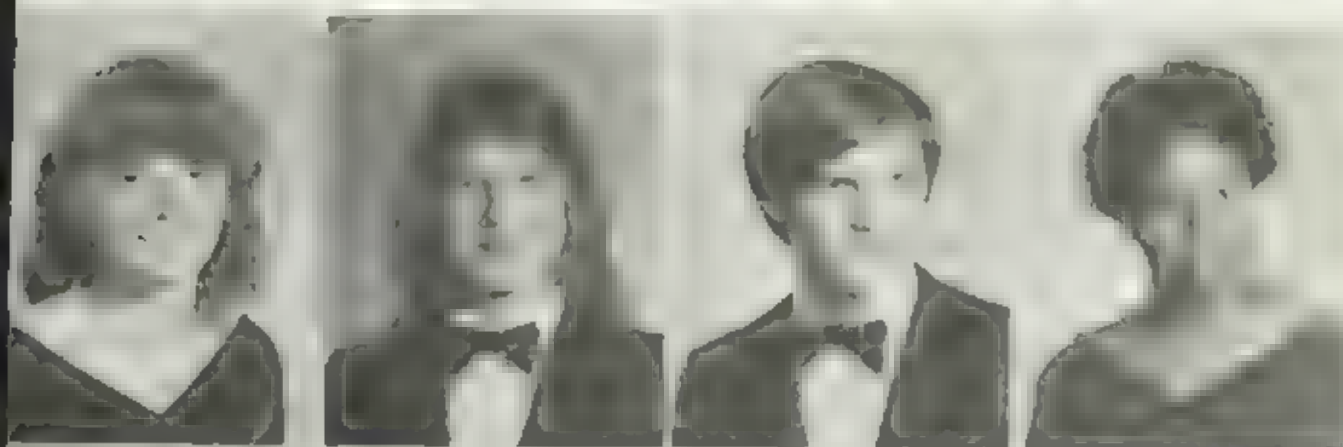

Seniors in Miss England's class read over a worksheet on general term paper knowledge

A PAINFUL PAPER

The beginning of school every year, seniors treaded the ultimate project: a TERM PAPER. After a tortured four weeks, seniors turned their papers in and waited until the third six weeks to get their grades. Then, when one thought it should be over, the second semester came with another paper and the torture started again.

HELP'S ON THE WAY

The Guidance Office offered college handbooks on almost any college one wanted to attend. They became available to check out for any student interested. Information on any branch of service also became easily accessible

The dreaded SAT, ACT, and Achievement Forms, also located in the Guidance Office, became another way our counselors helped students. The results of these and other tests provided many topics of discussion with Miss Betsy Preston, the senior guidance counselor. She also read over applications for college and helped to correct any mistakes. She assisted many students in solving personal problems as they arose.

College handbooks from almost any college occupied the shelves for students to review and even check out. A guide to careers, on microfiche, also became available to Royals.

Everyone entered the Guidance Office filled with questions and left with the answers. Many answers affected the lives of students for many years to come. If you needed help, guidance was the place to go

PULLING TOGETHER

The senior class had many let-downs this year. The float presented a prime example. However, President Angie Whitt, Vice President Kristen Short, and Treasurer Sabine Frye united the seniors into a spirited bunch of Royals.

OLE'
Senior class officers, Kristen Short, Angie Whitt and Sabine Frye, take time out to have a little fun.

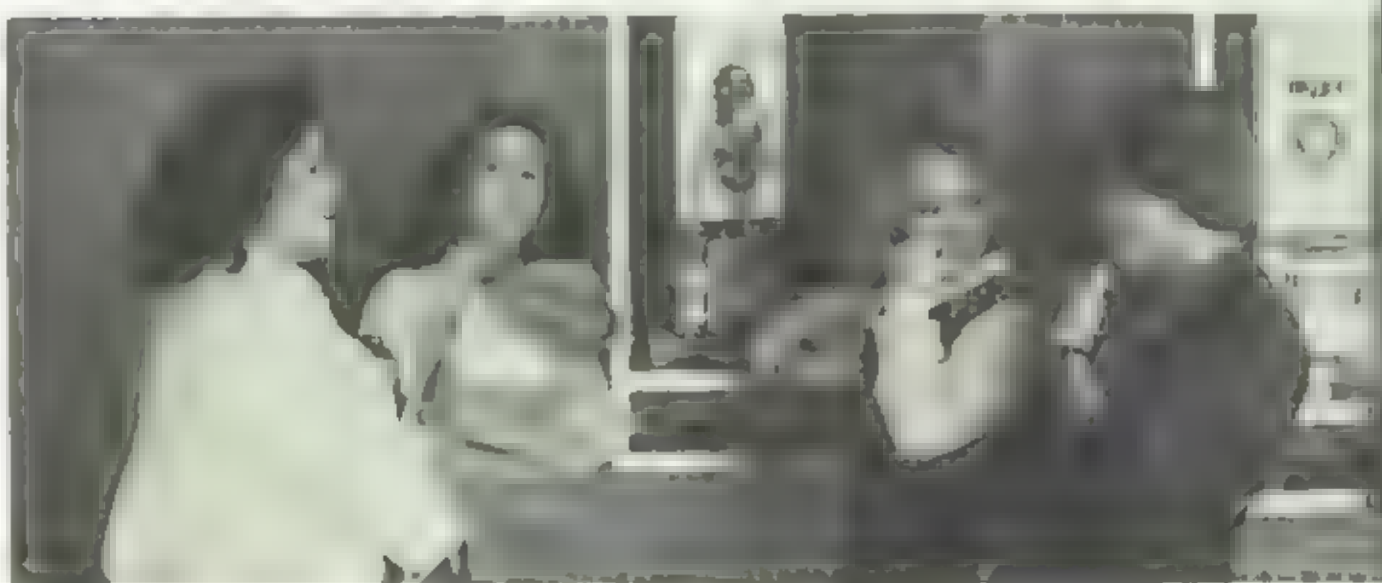

LOVE IN THE FAST LANE

The places ranged from a couple going to a gory horror flick to a crazy group at a pizza parlor. Dating in the senior class may have been serious or fun. Many relationships hung on through thick and thin while others changed with the weather. Maybe it was a quiet evening for two or a rowdie night with your clique, but seniors seemed to enjoy "the dating game."

GET IT IN EARLY

College day came to the Commons Area in October, 1982, and with it many ideas for students. Pamphlets presented the scenery of college campuses. In some cases, applications for admission became available. Representatives from colleges and universities throughout the state, as well as various out of state institutions, sent representatives and information. Many trade schools, community colleges and all of the branches of service provided people to talk to and information to hand out. Students got an opportunity to make big decisions that would affect them later in life. Some conflicts became resolved and solutions welcomed.

A grid of eight black and white portraits of students, arranged in two rows of four. The top row shows four students, and the bottom row shows four students. The students are dressed in formal attire, including tuxedos and dresses.

Garfield: P.G. Style

What's short, hairy and loves lasagna? None other than Garfield the cat! Garfield touched many students. He humored us with his books and comic strips. One found him plastered on just about everything from shirts to notebooks to soap to coffee mugs. Will he replace the all time favorite SNOOPY? Time will tell.

STARTING FROM SCRATCH!
The Junior class stews up another winning idea

Stewed to Success

The Junior class held its annual Brunswick Stew at Lee Park. It resulted in a complete success. The weather favored the project, the students worked hard, and the stew tasted great. They also worked hard on the hall decorating contest. A "Walk Down Main Street" theme led them to the $50 winner's prize.

Dominate

The junior class dominated over the seniors for the first time in many years with their award-winning "E.T." float at Homecoming. The juniors attended numerous meetings during and after school and turned out bright and early Friday morning to finish their masterpiece. Nancy McClellan portrayed E.T. while several other juniors accompanied her on the float. Despite cold weather and strong winds, the juniors worked hard and were rewarded for their efforts. The junior class showed an enormous amount of spirit, dedication and hard work. They planned to make their senior year as successful as their memorable junior year.

The Competition

Class elections brought much competition. Teresa Holt, chosen as president, and Michelle Sumpter, voted in as vice president, looked at the year ahead as one full of many opportunities. Debbie Skalsky won unanimously the job of secretary/treasurer as she had no running opponents. Preparations for Brunswick Stew, homecoming float, ring dance and Prom all topped the list of duties

Bold and Bright

Bright colors, wide stripes and thin ties entered the fashion scene this year. Some old favorites such as designer jeans, beachwear and the preppie look remained. The valley look spurred from Moon Zappa's top 40 hit song. Books with the topic of valley girl characteristics, became popular throughout America.

Junior Decisions

You have looked forward to it since ninth grade and this year the excitement started. In early September you got out of class for an assembly . . . Yes, the Josten's Ring Assembly. You got your packet with the different types of rings. How could you decide? So off you went to all your friends to see what they got. You finally made a decision, but how do you convince mom and dad to pay for it?

YOURS TO CHOOSE?

Soul, New Wave, Country, and Rock-and-Roll have all become better this year. People have become more and more aware of the different styles and types of music.

Soul has grown in more ways than one. The sophomore class survey proved this with Soul taking the #1 and #2 spots with "Truly" and "Your Mama."

Rock-and-roll still held its own with "Down Under" and "Rock the Casbah" at 3rd and 4th.

Come Alive in '88

Sixteen marked the age that many people began dating and driving. As a year filled with excitement and responsibility, sophomores saw the lighter side when they went to an "R" rated movie and faced the embarrassment of being carded. Even though they could drive to them they still could not get into them. Along with the responsibilities they encountered many temptations that needed resistance in their attempts to remain "sweet sixteen".

LEADERS IN SPIRIT

The criticism that the sophomore class officers received did not go unattended. The question and answer period during homeroom opened a new communication between the officers and the students.

The homecoming float, Christmas decorations and booth at the Heritage Fair resulted from enormous class spirit. They proved that sophomores had what it took to become respectable underclassmen.

The best thing about your first year in high school? No doubt, countless answers could apply, but the one thing all sophomores dreaded became EXAMS! Continuous lectures from teachers scolding you about maturity and responsibility became so boring and you soon began to wonder when it would all end. You spent numerous hours studying the things you never learned and when the day finally came, you knew you wouldn't make it. All those nights you sat in front of the T.V. instead of reading caught up to you. Once second semester exams came around, you knew, from your first semester experience, just how much you should study!

WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT

The Sophomore class started the year with very little spirit. Dr Russo's, "little talk," however, helped us catch that Sophomore Spirit. As we yelled, jumped, clapped and stomped our way to more and more pep-rallies, we found that the spirit became contagious and advanced us to a more enjoyable year.

FANCY FOOTWORK

The soccer season ended with six wins, four losses, and four ties. The team included two girls, which made it the only coed team in the district. Skip Lankford and Isaac Joseph held the positions of the team captains. Skip Lankford also received the award for the most valuable player. Pleased with the results of the season, the coach and players hoped next year would prove more outstanding.

TEAM TEED OFF

Despite just a handful of wins, the golf team had a great season overall. They placed third in the district tournament and sent Robert Edwards to regionals where he placed fifth.

Practice proved to be nothing short of fun. Sometimes, in the case of the dog that stole the golf balls, afternoons on the green were pretty exciting.

The team enjoyed playing on some very fine courses. This extended their fun to serious competition. Scott Chism stated, "We gave it our all," although a fairly young team with one freshman and an ineligible eighth grader.

STRENGTH LEADS TO DOMINATION

The Lady Royals softball season came a year of strength and victory. Every victory proved that experience, tenacity, and a little patience, dominate in a season.

The Ladies' work began in January with a weight training program, a new pitching machine, and an abundance of determination. The climax of the year came in May when the Royals moved on to the Regional playoffs. During this time they shook the Central District to its very core.

The Royals' season proved that hard work and determination get results. They finished second in the Central District with a record of 12-4. They also placed second in the Central District Championship with a record of 1-1. The team then moved on to Regional playoffs where they put up a good fight but lost to Henrico.

Time after time the Lady Royals showed that strength leads to domination. Their record proved it. Good job ladies!

MOUNDS OF POWER

The Royals baseball team began the season as a young and inexperienced squad, but showed great improvement as the season progressed. Individual accomplishments contributed to the team effort, as senior Donnie Sommerfeldt broke three school records and junior Frankie Moore batted over .400.

Highlights of the season included a last inning rally to defeat Dinwiddie and double-header sweeps of Armstrong Kennedy and Marshall Walker.

Senior shortstop Rusty Kilpatrick exemplified the hustling attitude of the team and supplied the Royals with enough experience to reach the play offs. The young arms of sophomore pitchers, Pat Tilmon and Brad Abernethy convinced everyone that the season's end promised the future's beginning.

POWER BOOSTERS

Under new Coach John Wells the J.V. Baseball team delivered a winning season of 8-6-1. Although the first three games turned up losses, the J.V. Royals reversed their course with credible wins. The team batting average hit the .264 mark, with Bobby Cain, Norman Harris, Mike Roddy, Darin Crichton and Ricky Rivera leading the squad. Southpaw pitcher Darin Crichton provided the leading power on the mound, with

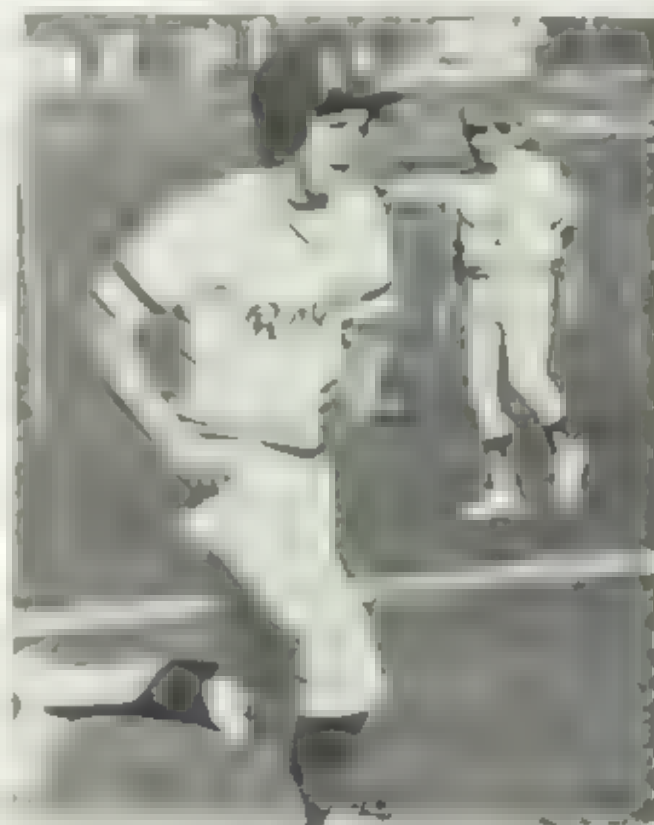

Michael Gross and Norman Harris backing him up

Coach Wells cited the last Dinwiddie game as exemplary of the teams' effort. "The Royals gave the undefeated Generals all they wanted before losing in the eighth inning. The team really showed their character by batting back in the late innings." These junior varsity players gained valuable experience and hopes for future varsity success

The Royals' ability to handle close, pressure matches placed them high in the district. The team finished their season with a 6-6 record. The team's forte was tie breakers. They won 9 out of 10. The Royals outranked the other teams in this department with Co-captain and MVP Dan Plourd, Steve Emerson, Ron Hudson, Dale Wittie, Ronnie Bell, Thad Shaw, and Pat Smith

Robin Borum, Judy Goodman, and Melissa Hoover gave the Royals points in the distance events. Pam Harvey, setting records in the high hurdles 200 meter, and 400-meter dash, earned a great deal of success for the team. She participated in setting records in the 800 and 1600-meter relays. She became the first Royal to capture a regional championship and went on to compete and place in the state championship. According to Coach Larry Springer, it is very hard to find words to describe Pam, considering her accomplishments. Pam will have a lasting place in the memory of this school. The boys track team put forth a good effort, but their goals eluded them. The young team showed their muscle in the shot put, discus, and pole vault events, but lacked vital experience in the sprints and jumps. Led by juniors, Derrick Johnson, Junie Goodwyn, Phillip Banks and Robert Hayes, the team proved tougher in their final meets than in the early going.

Coach Larry Springer cited Eric Jones as the most improved member on the squad. After a year of valuable experience behind them, the team, consisting primarily of freshmen and sophomores, hoped for an increase in membership, and anticipated greater success in the future.

The seniors on the team played a large part in team unity. They led in daily exercises and kept the team psyched up.

Sophomores Robin Borum and Melissa Hoover represented school talent when selected for the all-district team. The entire team participated in invitational meets held at the University of Virginia and the College of William and Mary. They struggled for a winning season, but their team spirit became their best asset.

ONE IN SPIRIT

The 1982 Lady Royals' tennis team proved their ability to play as a team by placing second in Central District followed by a trip to the Regionals, held in Richmond. The busy fall schedule often found the girls elsewhere, but the Lady Royals remained triumphant. They played for their team and school and did an outstanding job at it. Gale Matheny, one of the few loyal spectators, made a comment about supporting the team, "For the past six years I have been the only 'non-mommy' out here, but I feel the girls appreciate me being here." They did. When one of the girls fell behind and a team member could not get her psyched up, a supportive scream from the stands did. The enthusiastic new coach, Mike Alcola, also stirred the girls. Alcola drilled them in all aspects of tennis, making them stronger both mentally and physically. He made the importance of team unity very clear. The Lady Royals' spirit and ability to play as a whole helped them throughout their season.

OFF ON THE RIGHT FOOT

THE ROYAL SANDWICH.

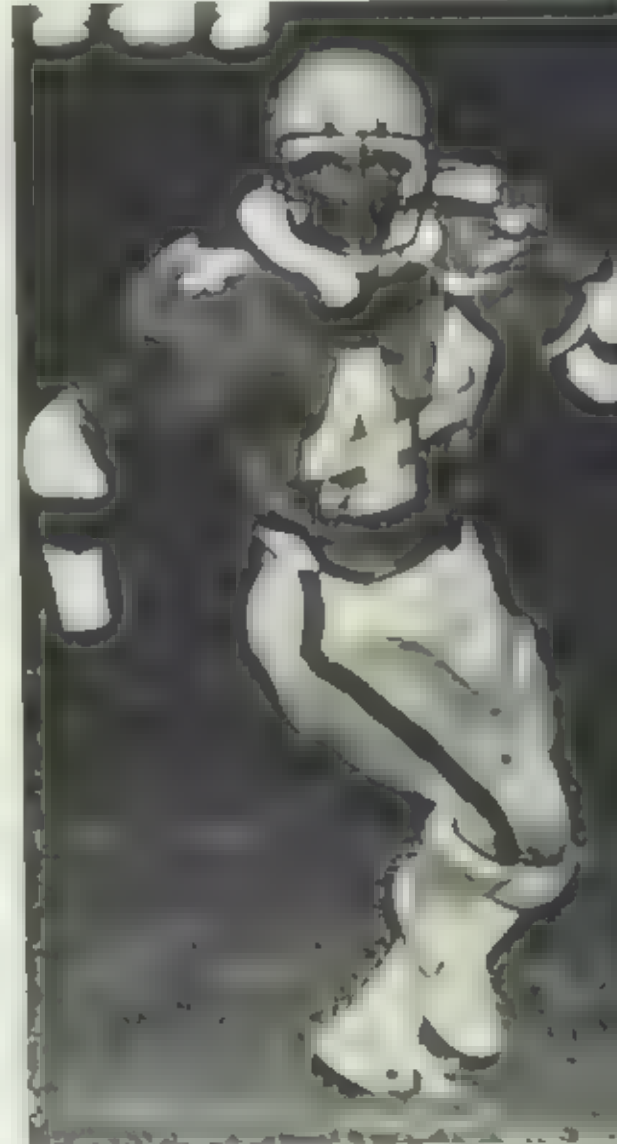

Darrell Brown, with the aid of teammate Randy Cox, crushes a Dinwiddie running back

The new season brought forth great expectations and hopes with many talented players returning. The Royals opened their season against Park View, whose team had four running backs scouted by colleges and the home field advantage. The Royals scored early on a touchdown by Linwood James. But Park View fought back, blocking the kick for the extra point and taking a 7-6 lead into half-time. The third and fourth quarters see-sawed back and forth with neither team able to score until time had almost run out on the Royals. The clock showed barely one minute left in the game when senior Randy Cox booted a thirty yard field goal to bring a 9-7 Royal victory and a happy bus ride home

PAYING THE PRICE

Despite the opening game victory, the Royals discontinued the streak and fumbles, interceptions and bad luck became the norm. Trailing arch rival Hopewell 8-7 at half-time, two third quarter fumbles and an interception turned a tight contest into a heart-breaking defeat. Unable to regain the old spirit, the next week brought another loss to a team the Royals outclassed. Unless the trend could be reversed, the season would be a nightmare.

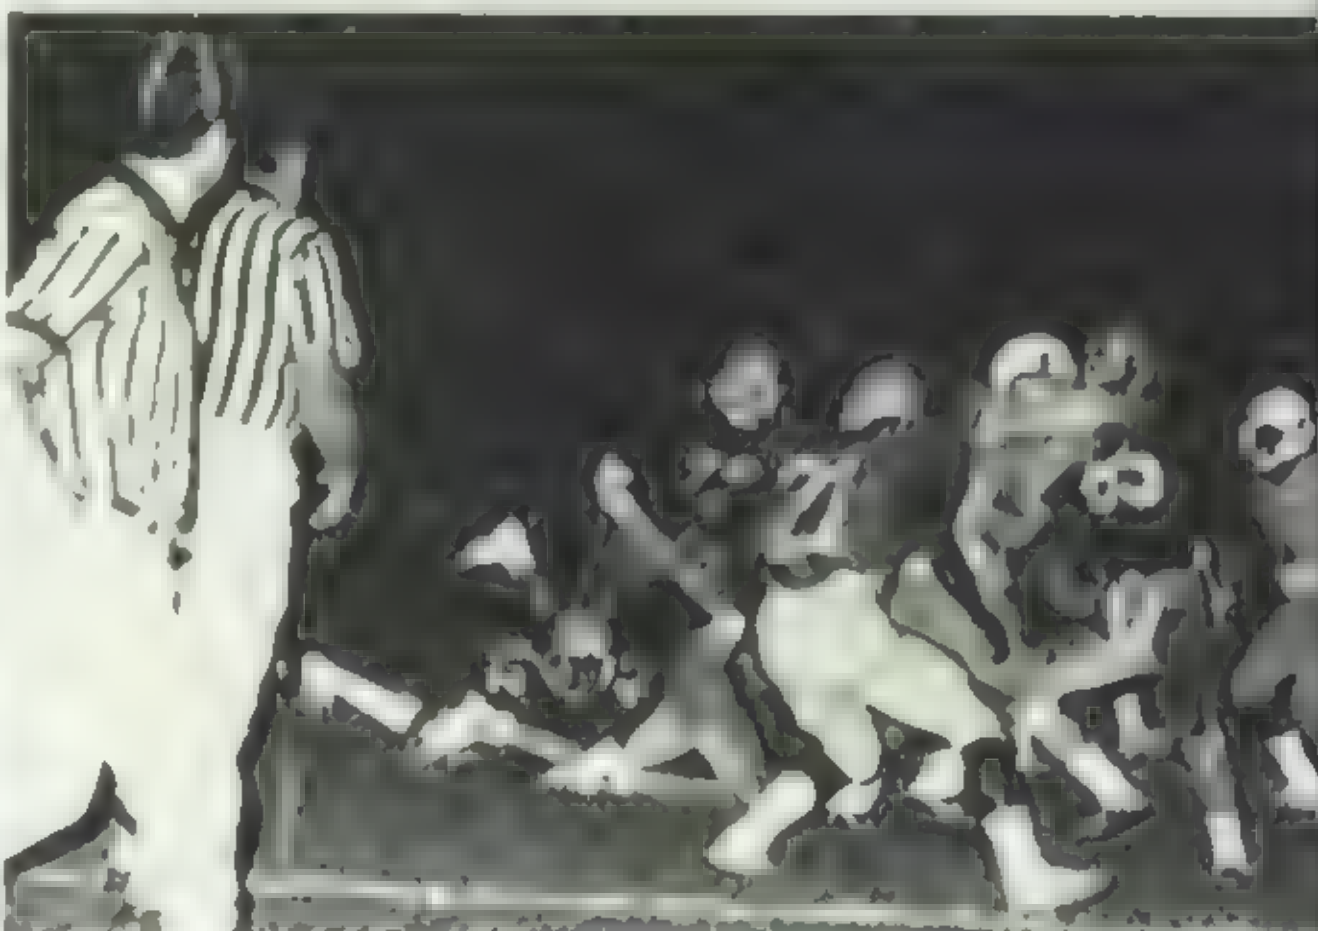

With the homecoming game against Phoebus rapidly approaching, the pressure felt by the team increased tremendously. They needed to play well, both offensively and defensively, to stop the huge Phantom team. The long grueling hours of practice in preparation for this game paid off. The offense and defense combined forces to shut out Phoebus, and score three touchdowns during homecoming. This victory lifted the spirits of the Royals' players and fans, giving hope for a new beginning and averting a return to past football seasons. Although the final record would not reflect it, the team had paid the price to win.

CRUSADE FOR THE TOP

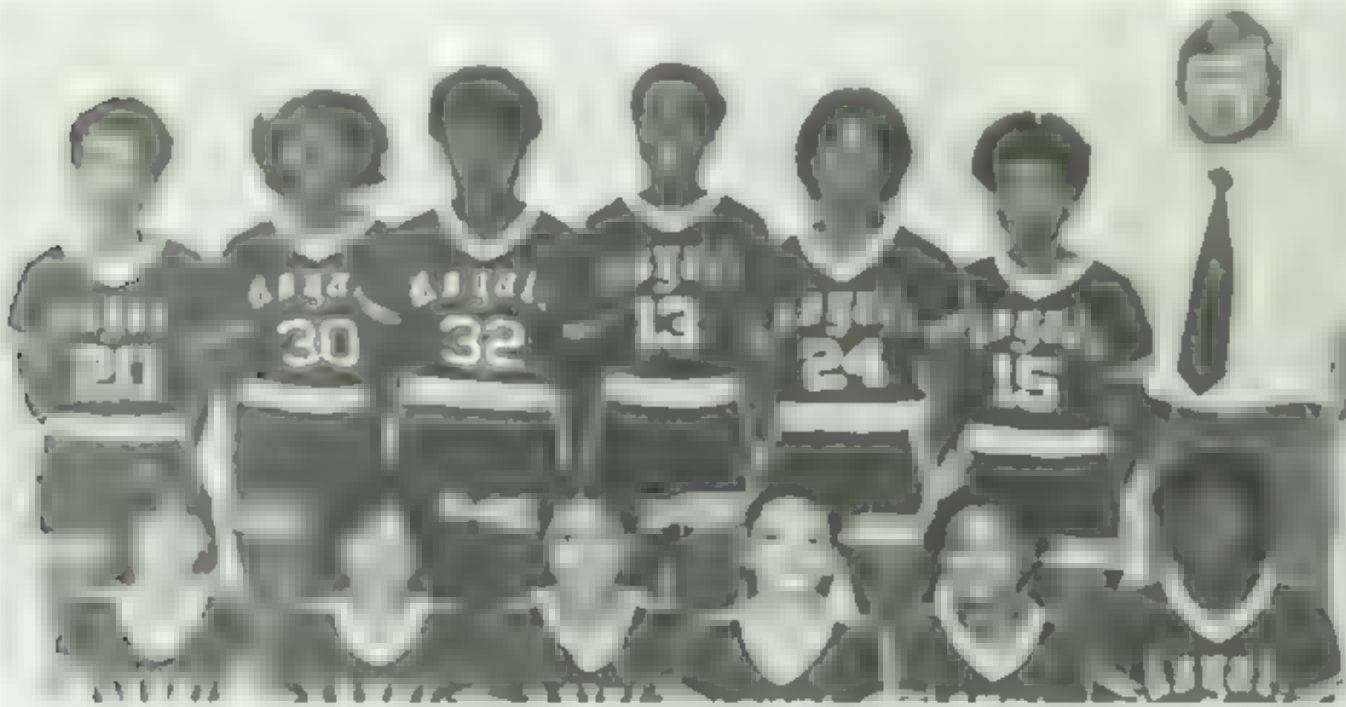

"We started out with a losing season and yet we showed them all!" This could be a typical quote from any member of the Lady Royals' basketball team. They began with a losing streak of three and ended up Central District and Central Tournament champions

In between this time the ladies worked on all aspects of basketball. Slowly their form became infallible, and everything fell into place.

Domination prevailed

The Lady Royals created not only a team, but a sisterhood. When one player fell, one of her teammates picked her up. The coaches, also, kept the team psyched up. The team became a family and to bother one member, one must deal with them all. With determination and love the Lady Royals' crusade for number one ended on the battlefield called a "court" with the girls victorious

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

As it could happen, the basketball season failed to be a winning one, but only in one aspect: points. The Royal basketball team would have won most of their games, due to the amount of training, practice, ability, and quality they had.

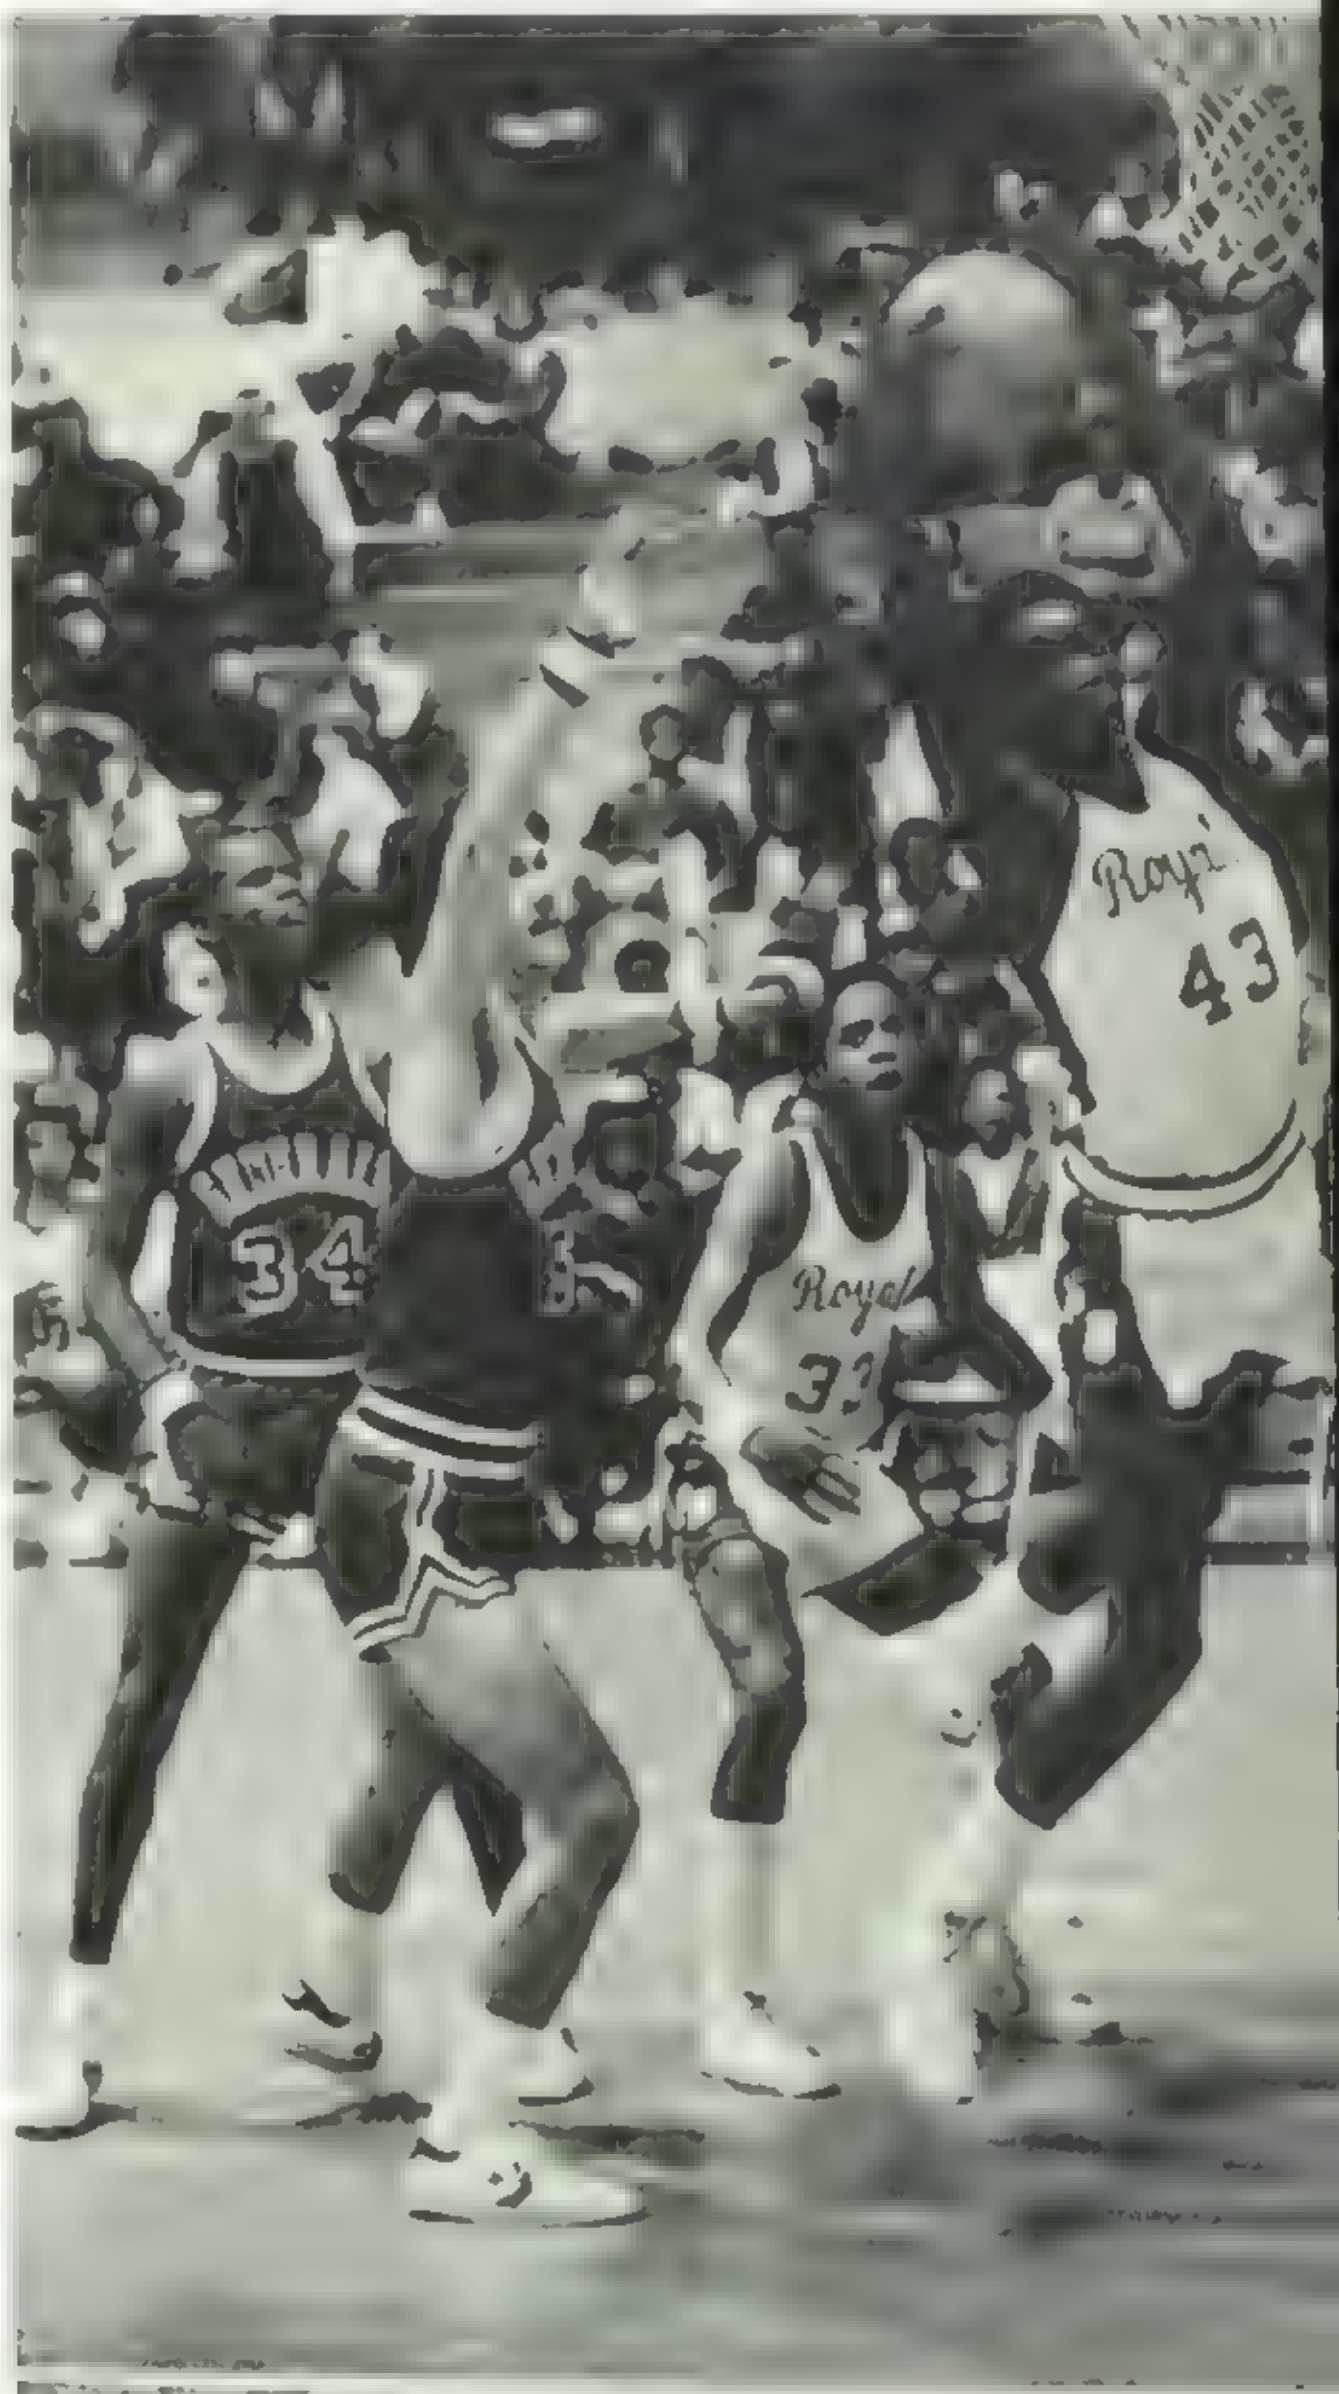

However, many changes rocked the Royals, the major one a new coach. Chip McCoull brought a totally unique defense and many other new tactics to the team. Due to this they had to relearn most, if not all, techniques for playing.

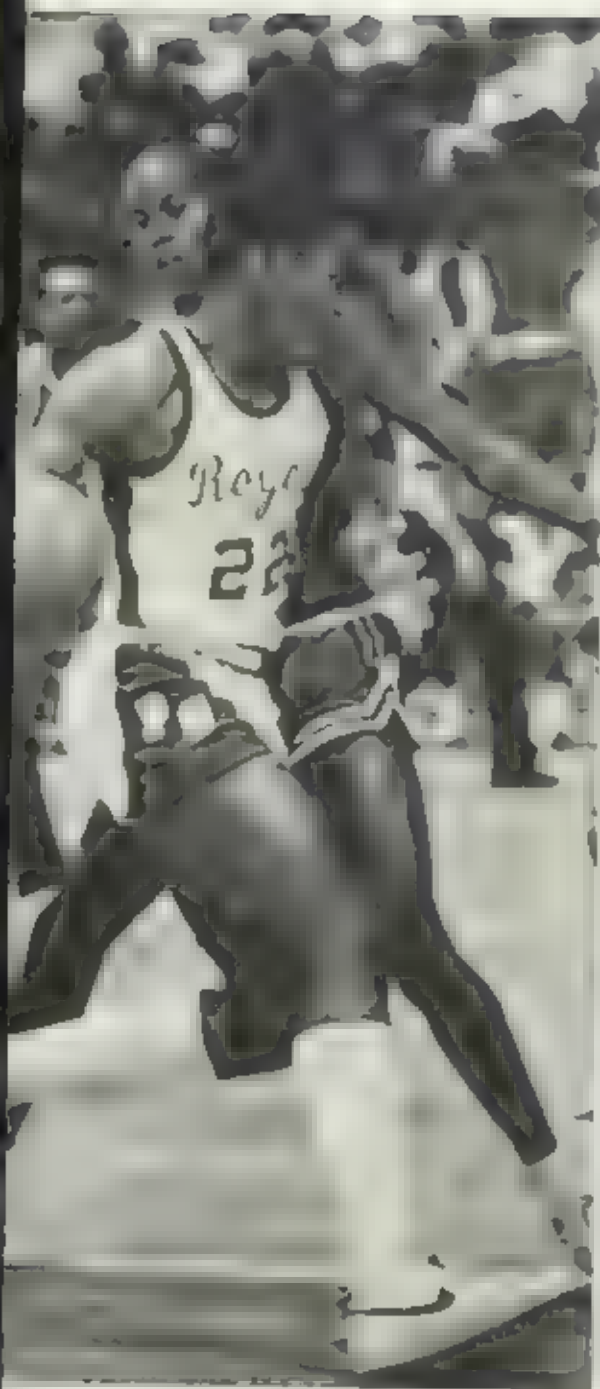

The Royals had extensive training for the season. They played an unbelievable forty summer league games. The team, also, had hard training before the season began. They won both pre-season games, but as fate would have it, they lost several players. This hurt the delicate balance of the team. Cyrus Crute, a center, had this to say about the season, "We tried, but we should have done better."

Try they did. Many of the games ended in overtime with the Royals behind by one or two points. The rebuilding process took the entire season to help strengthen the team, but it did lay the foundation for the future.

The Switch

A Junior Varsity player and team usually receive little or no recognition. However, new coach, Chip McCoull, and assistant coach, Theodore Langhorne, disagree. If a player excelled, he had the chance to be put on the varsity squad. This started the floating roster where players could change squads. The players did not try to be transferred off J.V. to varsity — they played as if already a varsity squad. Coach McCoull commented on the playing ability of the team, "they played as a mentally and physically whole team . . ." which helped the team in a successful year

A daily wrestling practice began with "loosening up" exercises and consisted of several important drills; for "takedown," for reversal and escape, and for pinning techniques. Conditioning or "cooling off" excercises ended the practices usually at 6.30, leaving the wrestlers tired and ready for home.

"Wrestling takes 100 percent dedication." Coach Bruce Hylton had a few truly dedicated wrestlers. These wrestlers, mainly experienced seniors, kept the team going throughout the season

The season did not reflect any of this dedication and effort. With only one victory, against an academically-weakened Dinwiddie team, the Royals continued to give their best effort, preparing themselves for districts, where emphasis lies upon the individual and not team achievement.

A variety of sports brought much involvement from the students. Enthusiasm became vital to keep all the "Royal spirits" alive. A new wave of coaches brought different ideas that helped advance the teams to many district and regional tournaments.

Coach Alcola came from North Carolina and did a fine job helping the girl's tennis team advance to Regionals. Coach Bolick offered the girl's softball team new strategies. Mr. Langhorne, our new technical drawing teacher, helped to coach boy's basketball. Mr. Marshall came on the scene and assisted the boy's track team while Miss Weatherly assisted the girls. Coach Tiller, not a new coach, moved from Junior Varsity to girls varsity basketball.

Cooperation and time and effort lead to many new accomplishments.

TRAVELING FOR KNOWLEDGE

PLANNING ANOTHER TRIP

Mrs. Gallup wraps up the final arrangements for the Science Club trip to the veterinarian.

The Science Club visited many places this year. They started off with a tour of the Hospital facilities at the Medical College of Virginia. From there they went to the Smithsonian Institute and then to a veterinarian where they witnessed surgery and learned to identify parasites. They did spend some time at school however, enough to hear Mr. John Thious speak on Extrasensory Perception otherwise known as ESP. The arrival of the Science Fair brought busy preparations with finding judges and supplying refreshments. The Science Club emphasized the learning of Science and encouraged science careers. This made them a busy Club.

The Domestic Exchange Club brought a variety of things to our lives this year. Pushing jackets, glasses, stationary, and dances everywhere they went, including the Prince George Heritage Fair, the Domestic Exchange Club still managed to keep their spirit up for the incoming exchange students. While the exchange students visited here they got a grand tour starting off with a coverdish supper the day they arrived. The students from Shawnee, Ohio received a taste of Southern hospitality. But, alas, the hard truth sneaked in with regular classes for 2 days. By leaving on March 20 these students had plenty of time to get ready for the Domestic Exchange Club's spectacular trip to their neck of the woods.

ADDING A TOUCH OF CLASS

BOARD MEETING

Members of YAC meet during homeroom to discuss plans for Christmas decorations.

The Youth Advisory Council started the year off by electing representatives from each homeroom. These newly elected members worked hard for their Club and the School. They added a touch of festivity to the lunchroom with colorful Christmas decorations. Traveling to the YAC State Convention in Williamsburg, they returned with new knowledge and ideas to help their program. YAC promises success and prosperity in the forthcoming year.

HOW'S THAT?

Karen Claytor, Sonya Moore, Sonya McCleary, and Angie Whitt converse on the upcoming changes

Everyone knows that normally, certain students run the Student Council Association. This year, however, every student ran the S.C.A. The new constitution opened the council meetings to anyone having a new idea or something to voice. These new revisions also did away with homeroom representatives and replaced two representatives with one Senator. The S.C.A. benefited the Seniors greatly this year. They sponsored a senior girl in the State Rising Senior Convention at Longwood College. With National Student Leadership Week and Senior Teacher Switch day, the seniors had a taste of the real world. The S.C.A. sponsored the Homecoming Activities, Hush Day, S.C.A. Home Mobile, and on Dec. 21st had a breakfast for the faculty. They also had a booth in the P.G. County Heritage Fair. Even in the midst of so much to do, the S.C.A., forever thinking of bettering the school, took time to go to the S.C.A. convention at UVA. The S.C.A. reflected every individual in our school.

For more fun they sponsored a student-faculty basketball game after the senior spaghetti dinner. Never having a dull moment, the literary magazine also held an essay contest which contained many poems, plays, and short stories. The Future Farmers of America had a busy and prosperous year. Their traditional sale of oranges and grapefruits gave the club extra finances. They entered many competitions such as the Tractor Driving Contest, a Livestock Judging, and a Forestry Judging. Each time they finished well and represented the school in a reputable manner.

VICA had an equally good year. They sold stained glass Christmas ornaments for a fund raiser. And for a club get together, they enjoyed a day of fun at King's Dominion.

ABSTRACT OBJECTS AND MEDIEVAL PAWN

With the annual Homecoming banner, the Art Club started the year with a splash. They put on shows for the junior high schools and sold handmade Christmas ornaments. In addition to this, they kept their showcase filled with paintings, pictures and pastels to show off their talents.

For the Chess Club, however, concentration became the key word. With more members than last year, the team improved greatly. "Checkmate" became the word of the day, usually spoken by a Royal knight.

INGENIOUS MINDS

The Beta Club and National Honor Society worked together on many projects, including the Homecoming float

As a fund raiser to help needy families at Christmas the Beta Club sponsored a pie throwing contest. With help from the students and faculty, they raised over two hundred dollars. To supplement this they also gave a Christmas dance.

Their major accomplishment this year came about when they decided to give an outstanding senior member a scholarship of one hundred and fifty dollars. Participation in the community surpassed any previous years.

The National Honor Society tapped in seven new members in November.

THE J. GALLUP BAND

The Band! This phrase took on a new meaning in school this year. They spent the entire summer getting ready for the upcoming football season. During these summer months the Band picked Kathy Hauck as Drum Major. They also nominated Mike Beaudet and Kelly Kral as Band Captains. These three people together with the captains of the Drill Teams formed the Band Council. This group formed a strong leadership to aid Mr. Gallup in developing the kind of Band of which they could all be proud.

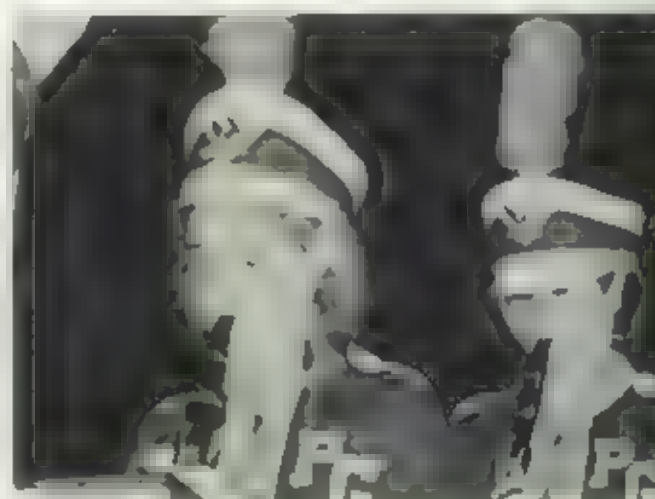

At the beginning of the year the Band emerged demanding recognition for their achievements. To get this recognition, they performed at a vast majority of football games and gave their seasonal Christmas concert.

Some students expanded their musical talents to perform at Midlothian High School in a District III All Regional Band Weekend. The Band closed their year by competing at King's Dominion and performing at the Heritage Fair.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS

Under the leadership of head majorette, Kim Wallace, and the guidance of their sponsor, Mrs. Pearce, the majorette squad added a great deal to the Band this year.

For the flag squad, however, the year did not start off as well as expected due to the late arrival of the new uniforms and boots. The flags sponsored by Mrs. Hallman, also contended with a constantly changing roster and many first year members.

The rifles, also sponsored by Mrs. Hallman, had a large majority of their members returning. By helping the rookies they performed better than ever before, with the high point being their circle routine to "Let's Groove." Captain Leslie Limerick led the group. All in all the drill teams performed with outstanding precision.

Excitement bounds as the Spanish Club performs at the Christmas assembly

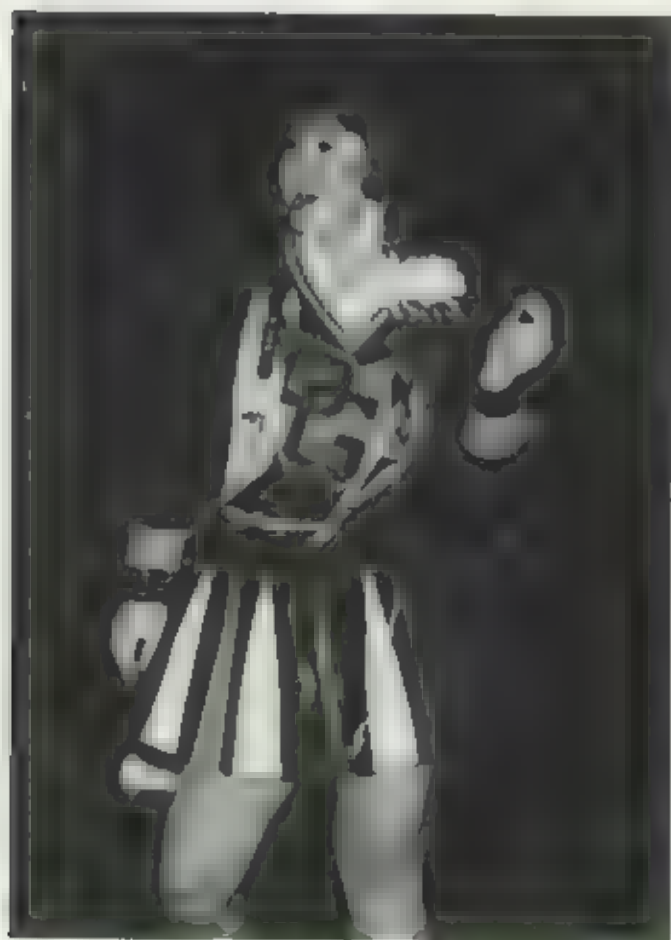

El Circulo Español got off to a slow start with sluggish attendance. However, the Christmas season restored club support in many ways.

Daily practices for their performance for the annual Foreign Language Christmas dinner turned into practices for the Christmas school assembly.

Although the club rehearsed well, butterflies and jitters overcame them. Once they wished everyone "Feliz Navidad", however, all the nervousness left them.

CHEERING FOR SUCCESS

The Junior Varsity cheerleading squad got into the wave of things this year. Co-Captains Amiko Farrar and Jane Price succeeded in letting the school know that J.V. meant Robin, Pam, Karen, Lisa, Laurie, Valerie and Theresa. Scott Chism, Daryel Hill and Jerry Colston came forth in late October to help out for competitive events. Later the squad decided to let the guys help out in basketball games. After a smashing debut at the opening pep rally for winter sports, the guys started cheering at all games.

The pom pom squad held together for a competitive year, also. The girls added the spirit to the events whenever they cheered.

Mrs. Shelby Dolbear, sponsor of these two groups, commented that "both squads worked hard to bring to Prince George the best cheerleading squads ever."

Phil Banks and Reggie Newcomb listen intently as sponsor Theodore Langhorne talks about the meeting for the day

A change in command hit the Industrial Arts Club. Mr. Langhorne replaced Mr. McLaughlin as sponsor. The Club had a booth at the Virginia State Fair where they showed slides and had members demonstrating mechanical drawing techniques using T-squares and right triangles. They also got involved in Vocational Education Week. Signs illustrating different job opportunities emerged throughout the school. Another display for a conference appeared at John Tyler. The Club also got involved in the Virginia Industrial Arts Spring Festival. Many members participated in these events and learned a variety of new ideas and concepts.

MUENCH WITH THE MELODIE

The choir performed for various audiences this year, ranging from pre-schools to senior citizens. They also sang at churches, breakfast meetings, and schools.

The ensemble, a select group of choir members, performed for special audiences and received added attention from Ms. Muench. Many people enjoyed the talents of these young people.

The Future Homemakers of America met on the last Monday of every month to discuss their projects for the year.

Their school-related activities included a homecoming float, a booth at the Heritage Fair, and babysitting at North Elementary School during P.T.A. meetings.

At Thanksgiving, they sent food baskets to the needy. For an Easter project, they sponsored an egg hunt for area children.

With the leadership of president Judy Kelly, the FCA shared a unique closeness throughout many club functions.

They spent Friday nights working the concession stands at the football games. During Homecoming week, they make plans for a float and kept everyone's insides warm at the bonfire with hot chocolate.

At Christmas time, the club celebrated with a pizza party and then shared their spirit with the public by caroling. Once at Judy Kelly's house for refreshments, they played a "discover yourself" question and answer game which brought them even closer together at that time of joy.

The FCA held prayer meetings every Wednesday before school for continued fellowship.

It began with cast call, call backs and then the decision became final. A month of preparation followed with long hours of building, painting, and memorizing lines. The endless anticipation built until at last came opening night! The heart quickened, a twinge of nervousness, characterized the excitement. When the curtain drew on the final scene of "Dark At The Top Of The Stairs" everyone breathed a sigh of relief, and preparation for the next production began soon after.

STARTING FROM SCRATCH

With only two returning members to the staff and three inexperienced advisors, the year could have been a mess. However, the handful of people had enough energy and new ideas that they could do almost anything.

They attended many seminars, including a weekend trip to the University of Virginia. These seminars helped the staff break away from the traditional and become a part of the new wave!

As always, problems arose at deadline time. The need for pictures and not yet written copy headed the list of reasons for unfinished layouts. The long hours of work and many weekend meetings finally ended in early February and resulted in a fine remembrance of the past year.

Russo Resigns Ruffa Replaces

The biggest change in our school came when Dr. Russo submitted his resignation effective January 1, 1983. The new wave splashed Mr. Ruffa, a N.B. Clements assistant principal, into the position of principal. Dr. Russo left us to return to his native land of New York. There he obtained the position of assistant superintendent of instruction for the Binghamton City school system. Our new principal, Mr. Ruffa, looked forward to working with high school students.

Through sponsoring the Ye Royal Scribe, Mrs. Cindy Merrix made it possible to inform students of school activities. It also gave her Journalism students first-hand experience in writing articles for a newspaper.

Rings Around the Roses

The theme of the Ring Dance Moonlight and Roses, went over well with the juniors involved in the preparations. After hours of intense decorating, the commons transformed into an enchanted garden.

The students who attended the dance rocked, rolled, and swayed to the beat to KS96's Robert on the Radio. They received their rings while proceeding through the traditional ring figure. The evening left many fine memories that the juniors will cherish for years to come. This step toward graduation completed the requirements for being a full fledged junior year.

The chance of a lifetime: the Seniors got to switch places with the teachers. The students learned firsthand the life of a teacher and the teachers got the chance to abuse the "new teachers." The fair exchange taught both the teachers and the students how the other survives a day of school. Matt Danielson (Miss England) thought the switch helped to prove he did not want to be a teacher. It showed a lot of people the hardships a teacher goes through.

FROM THE EDITORS' DESK . . .

The Thirtieth Edition of the Peerage has been brought to you with the help of many individuals. A special thanks goes out to these fine people:
Mrs. Barbara Staples, for getting a small group of people to tackle a big job
Mrs. Carol Peterson, for collecting the money for yearbook payments
Mr. Phil Pompeii, for staying overtime to get the staff many needed pictures and also for letting Penny Shornak and Steve Bardy get out of his class to work on the yearbook.
Mrs. Carolyn Temple, for always having the key waiting, identifying pictures of students that no one else seemed to know, and for all the other little things
Mrs. Jean Blackwell, for keeping our money straight.
Mr. Dale Garvey, for providing the many needed sports pictures
Mrs. Greta Collins, for all the help she gave us
Mr. Danny DeFalco, for being there when we needed him
Miss Kathy Carter, for picking up the pictures in Petersburg
To all the office staff, who tolerated our constant interruptions and use of the typewriters.
Mrs. Dorothy Shornak, for all the typing she did on the senior statistics
Mr. Steve Staples, for all the forgotten captions he wrote and for listening to all the complaints about the staff.
To WSSV and Mr. Steve Leonard, for providing us with another tape to use in our slide presentation.
Kathy Sanford, Kim Thomas, and Wayne Ogle for always being there!
And to anyone we might have inadvertently omitted.

Thanks for everything!

Steve Bardy and Penny Shornak

Whether happy, sad, bored or just plain frustrated the face told the whole story. At some point in the year all students felt these emotions and usually showed it on their faces. Varied reactions came with the announcement of Dr. Russo's resignation, while anxiety summed up a basketball fans feelings. With classes came whole new thoughts. Frustration, boredom and general clowning around topped the list of emotions. Exams caused pain and few hours of sleep, as one crammed for 8 hours to learn a semester of literature. As the year drew to a close the excitement of graduation or a three month break made all of us feel relieved.

CAUGHT

These Senior English students busy themselves with taking notes

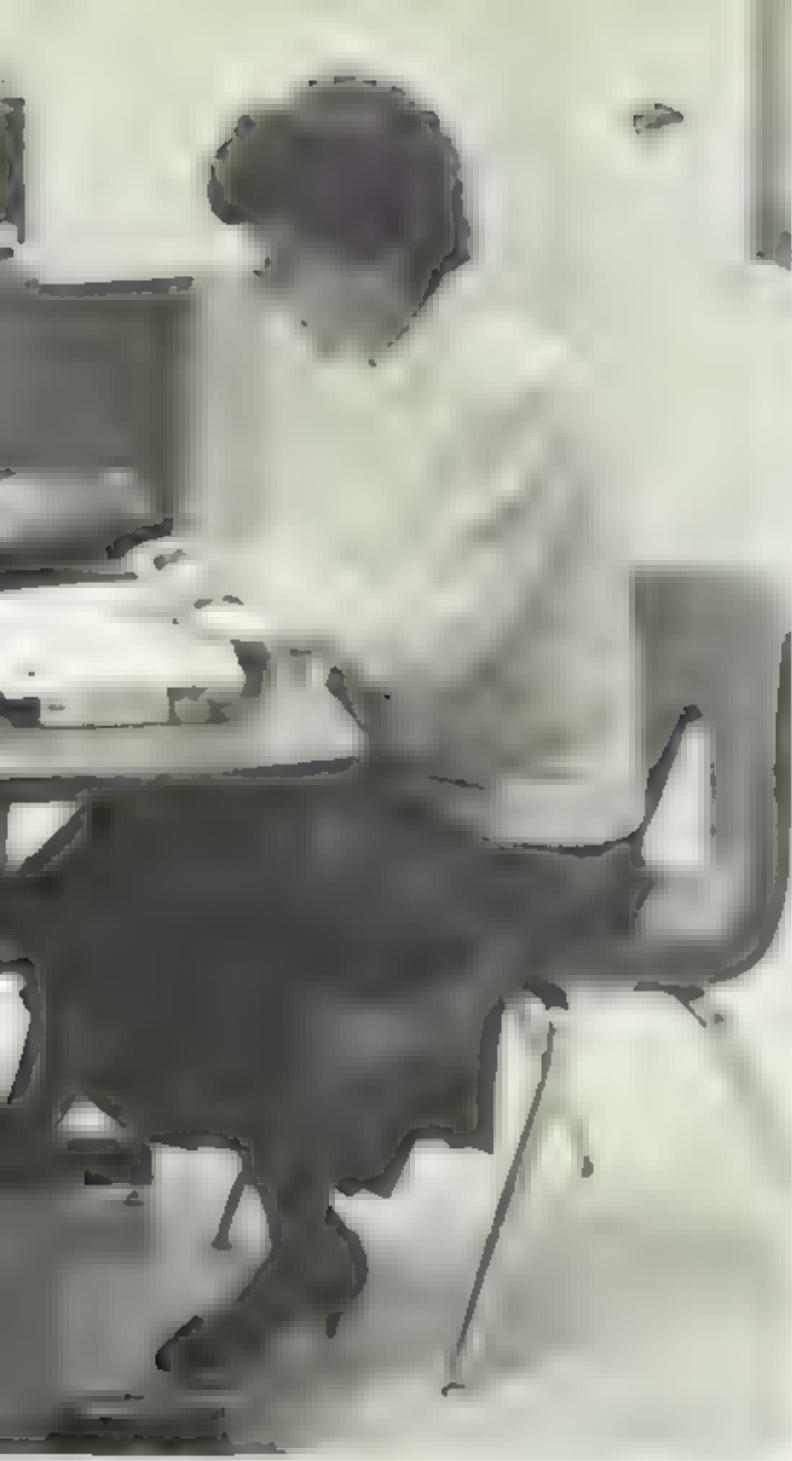

Some things about school never changed. The required classes, English and Physical Education, took many hours of work. Mrs. Fletcher, the year 'round substitute, never strayed far from "home." Hallway crowds became more congested and the mobs in the Commons added to the confusion. These and many other things never changed no matter who performed the duties of principal

GRIN AND BEAR IT

Stephanie Frye chuckles as she does the wrong exercise.

Everyone had many memories throughout their high school years; some to remember and some never to even think about again! Remember the time you tried to open your locker for five minutes and then found out you had ventured into the wrong wing? What about the time you stayed up until one o'clock to study for a literature test only to find out you had a grammar test instead. Lots of funny and unusual things made everyone's days in high school memorable.

REMEMBER WHEN ...

LONE "RANGER"

Remember the day your car stalled and you couldn't get it started?

Many changes occurred this year. First the unforeseen resignation of Dr. Russo left us all a little unsure. Term Papers became shorter and the choices were more limited. Eighteen inches of snow caused the Ring Dance to be postponed for three weeks, which angered many juniors. These, and the many other changes, brought about the New Wave which made this year exciting, different and filled with uncertainty.

It's been a long time now and I wouldn't have traded a minute of it. You have understood me when no one else did. Thank you for being there for me and giving me some great advice. I hope I've helped you too. Although we've had our share of fights I'm glad we've remained friends and sisters. You have been great to me and I'll try to be great to you. I'm sorry for the fights and the wrong doings. Thanks for the help with Ch.P. Chuck. Jeff or however it was. When Andy (I probably will) move to Georgia I'll take with me the memories of all the times we spent together. I'll be there for your wedding and any other time you want me here. Wherever we may go in life, let's promise to always keep in touch. Good luck sis. Be good to Judge.

Take care.

Love you forever sis!

EVEN THOUGH WE NEVER KNEW EACH OTHER UNTIL ENGLISH CLASS THIS YEAR YOU'VE REALLY 'GROWN' ON ME. YOU'RE A WARM SENSITIVE PERSON THAT I HOPE HAS A WONDERFUL MARRIAGE AND LIFE. LOOKOUT WHEN YOU FIND THE 'RIGHT MAN, CHILD.' STAY CUTE AND BLONDE.

Remember all the good times we had at Vicki's house during the summer. I got of regret some of it though (if you know what I mean). Good luck with Judge and don't get into too much trouble. Love, Bryan (Champ)
